To Whom It May Concern:

Bart has been reporting to me for about 1.5 years.

During that time he was running a team of 8 developers, covering two work streams in one of our business critical platforms. He established a very good relationship with both, the team as well as our clients, which allowed him to successfully deliver several key project initiatives.

Due to his strong leadership and financial product knowledge he was able to grow several team members into more senior positions within the team. In addition he was able to successfully drive the technical strategy of the platform
